In the characteristic of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is manifested every day in the remarkable cures this medicine accomplishes. Druggists say: When we sell a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla to a new customer we are sure to see him back in a few weeks after more—proving that the good results from a trial bottle warrant continuing its use. This positive merit

possesses by virtue of the Peculiar Combination, Proportion and Process used in its preparation, and by which all the remedial value of the ingredients used is retained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is thus Peculiar to itself and absolutely unequalled in its powers as a blood purifier, and as a tonic for building up the weak and weary, and giving strength to the nerves. Lines of the Big Racers

New York, September 27.—The Shamrock was today safely dry docked at Erie Basin. Every precaution was taken to prevent mishap to the big cutter, and twenty minutes after she was warped in to position over the twelve blocks at the bottom of the dock her keel was resting securely in place. There was no attempt to hide the lines of the yacht from view.

The Shamrock lay alongside the partly burned steamer Bucaros all night, and early this morning her crew was put to work scraping off the green paint that covered her top sides, exposing the true metal underneath. Just what metal these two upper streaks of plates are composed of is a secret, but it looks much like a competition of aluminum and nickel, very light and at the same time very strong.

At the time the Shamrock's keel touched the blocks there were about twelve feet of water from blocks to the surface, which makes her draught about the same figure, or an inch or two less. The crew was at once put to work in two squads scrubbing the hull with brushes.

The experts expected to see something new and a radical departure from the old type of English cutter. The Shamrock can be described as a vessel with a Britannia body and a Defender fin and lead, including the latter's rock keel, but with greater draught than either. There is nothing particularly handsome about the cutter's lines, except that they are all curves, there being no straight lines except from the turn of the guard boards to the lead.

In comparison with the Columbia, the Shamrock is fuller-bodied, especially amidships, has about a foot more beam and a draught about ten inches greater. Her overhangs are shorter, so that the lines of her are not so well carried out as in the Columbia, and, being short, increase the look of bulkiness. Then she is higher sided than the cup defender.

The Shamrock carries more sail than the Columbia, as her mast is stepped about two feet farther aft, giving her more head-sail, while the mainsail is also larger than the cup defender's.

The Shamrock's amidships sections are continuous curves from the deck lines to the turn of the garboard. Her bilge hardens greatly at the quarter just opposite to the Columbia's, and gives one the impression that it will retard her progress in sailing.

Amidships the Columbia has a line almost straight from the bilge to garboard, giving her a flatter floor, while the Shamrock is full and round.

When the lead keel was exposed it was found to be unlike the Columbia's, in that it is unprotected by bronze. It is painted with a sort of red composition to protect it from the action of the salt water, but the crew had considerable work in cleaning off the slimy coating.
